Editorial

Welcome to the first issue of HRAS for 2002.

You will undoubtedly notice a new look to the journal. We are proud to announce that HRAS is now published on behalf of the Australian Academy of Science by CSIRO PUBLISHING, beginning with Volume 14 in 2002. From Volume 14, full access to the print and online editions is available to subscribers and Fellows of the Academy, while non-subscribers may purchase individual papers by following the links from the website.

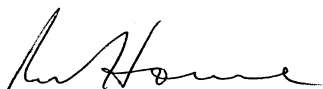

CSIRO PUBLISHING is an experienced scholarly publishing house, and currently publishes nineteen journals across many areas of animal, plant and earth sciences. Their expertise and infrastructure will bring many benefits to readers of HRAS, including full online delivery, an 'Early Alert' service that notifies you by email when a new issue is available on the web, and improved electronic manuscript handling procedures.

Professor R. W. Home will continue in his role as Editor of HRAS, with primary responsibility for consideration of submitted manuscripts, and relations with authors and reviewers. He is assisted by members of the Editorial Board, who maintain a general oversight of the journal and from time to time provide advice.

Dr Jennifer McCutchan joins HRAS as the Production Editor from CSIRO PUBLISHING. She is responsible for managing the progress of accepted manuscripts through the production process, in consultation with the Editor. This involves liaising with copyeditors, typesetters, printers and authors, to ensure a high quality final product.

Please visit our website at <http://www.publish.csiro.au/journals/hras> to learn more about new developments.

We thank you for your ongoing support of HRAS in 2002, and look forward to continuing to provide you with an excellent product.
