

SUPPLEMENTARY MATERIAL

Genetic differentiation of the regional populations of widespread Chinese toad (Bufo gargarizans), as revealed by novel development microsatellite markers

T. Pan^{A,C}, P. Yan^{A,C}, M. Yang^A, H. Wang^A, I. Ali^A, M. Ayub^A, J. H. Zhang^A, J. J. Wang^A, E. Li^A,
H. Xue^A, B. W. Zhang^B and X. B. Wu^{A,D}

^AAnhui Province Key Laboratory for Conservation and Exploitation of Biological Resource, College of Life Sciences, Anhui Normal University, Wuhu 241000, Anhui, China.

^BAnhui Key Laboratory of Eco-engineering and Bio-technique, School of Life Sciences, Anhui University, Hefei 230601, Anhui, China.

^CThese authors contributed equally to this work.

^DCorresponding authors. Email: zhangbw@ahu.edu.cn; wuxb@ahnu.edu.cn

Fig. S1. Allele size and frequency of 12 microsatellite loci described for B. gargarizans. Numbers on top of the bars are the actual number of alleles obtained in the sample analysed.

